

Full Job Description

Orofacial Myofunctional Therapist Position Available for Current Dental Hygienist.

Are you looking for a rewarding career opportunity working with adults and children to help them breathe, sleep and feel better? Are you ready to use your dental hygiene experience to advance your education and skills to treat patients with specialized therapy practices? Do you thrive working in a team centered atmosphere with the opportunity to have fun?

We are excited to announce that the Pain and Sleep Therapy Center / Center for Airway and Facial Development are looking to add an energetic, self motivated and team-centered Dental Hygienist who is, or is eager to become, trained in Orofacial Myofunctional Therapy with a comprehensive understanding of the Airway! We understand that the basis of most dysfunction starts in young children, making Myofunctional Therapy a true pillar of our practice. Our candidate must be excited to travel and learn, great with kids, and most importantly want to change lives!

We have opportunities in both our Newark, DE and Bryn Mawr, PA locations.

Responsibilities:

- Encompass strong integrity and interpersonal skills while evaluating, planning and providing individualized therapy plans for patients based on training and best practices in orofacial myofunctional therapy
- Therapy will be conducted for all ages, including infants, young children, teenagers, and adults with a specialty focus including, but not limited to orofacial myology
- Collaborate easily with parents, caregivers, other professionals, and fellow team members to achieve desired patient outcomes and victories
- Timely completion of required documentation and treatment notes
- Maintain continuing education requirements as defined for state and national licensures
- Participate and provide key input into the continued development of the Myofunctional Therapy Program, including outreach and educational presentations to local providers and the community on the benefits of the therapy

Our mission is to improve the quality of life for all patients by discovering the root cause to help reduce pain, enhance sleep, increase energy and promote growth and development. Through education and collaboration with other specialized providers, we help our patients commit to a wellness journey that focuses on proactive prevention and prioritizes overall health at each stage of life.

We offer comprehensive medical benefits, personalized training programs, and more! We are looking for passionate, hard-working people who want to be part of our team and take ownership and pride in what they do. We promise exciting opportunities and growth potential.

If you are interested, or know anyone who would be a good fit, please reach out to us.
